Explanations:

S. mount: Scope mount. Mkb42 and the first 43/1 had a scope mount integral on the rear sight. A few MP43/1 and MP43 had a scope rail spot-welded to the right side of the receiver.

Muz. nut: All except the last produced had a muzzle nut. The 43/1 muzzle nut is bigger as on the other types: The threaded muzzle was for use of a silencer.

C. blued: Completely blued. The first had a blue finish on all parts, later some parts weren't blued - that depended on what the subcontractors delivered. The last weren't blued at all. Instead a cellulose spray was used. In beginning grey - later transparent as on wood.

Description: The MP43, MP44 and StG44 are fundamentally the same. The MP43/1 is different. It has a thicker barrel, another barrel nut and front sight base. The early MP43/1 had a scope mount.

Names: The MP43 was officially renamed April 25, 1944 to MP44. Oct. 22, 1944 the MP44 was renamed to StG44. The new names weren't effective until much later. The MP43 was for example produced until the war ended.

MKb42(H)

Production began in 1942 and ended in Sept. 43. 10,700? were produced.

MP43/1

Production began in July, 43 and ended in the very first months of 1944. 24,300 produced ?

Note: no number without a letter suffix. Were the first 10,700 reserved MKb42(H) ?

MP43

Production began Dec. 1943 and ended in 1945.

MP44

Production began in 1944 and continued to the end of the war.

StG44

Production began in 1945.

Total production MP43/1, MP43/MP44/StG44 according to Dieter Handrich:

Haenel	Incl. MKb42 ?	185.000
Erma		104.000
Steyr	All were MP44	80.000
Sauer		55.000
Total:		424.000

Production according to Peter Senich:

Mkb42 in 1942:	91
Mkb42 in 1943:	11.717
